PRESENTERS

Cayte Anderson, PhD, LPC, CRC, serves an Associate Profession in the Department of Counseling, Rehabilitation, and Human Services at the University of Wisconsin-Stout. Dr. Anderson has worked in the field for over 20 years in various capacities as a rehabilitation counselor, researcher, educator, and administrator. Her current research interests focus on better understanding and improving socioeconomic opportunities for individuals with disabilities through use of evidence-based practices, with an emphasis on youth and families, soft skills development, competitive integrated employment, career pathways, and financial empowerment. Dr. Anderson currently serves as Co-Investigator on the Rehabilitation Research and Training Center on Employment of Persons with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities in close collaboration with investigators at Virginia Commonwealth University and the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She actively collaborates with key stakeholders across systems and promotes meaningful knowledge translation efforts to help bridge the gap between research and practice.

Sara Park, MS, CRC, received her undergraduate degree in psychology with clinical counseling concentration. She worked with children with Autism Spectrum Disorder providing early intensive behavioral treatment before joining the Master's program in Rehabilitation Clinical Counseling Psychology at University of Wisconsin—Madison. Her research interest is improvement of quality of life of transition-age youths primarily with Intellectual and/or Developmental Disabilities (IDD). She is interested in services and interventions provided for this population and how to improve the quality, efficiency, coordination and collaborations of these services and interventions. She is continuing her doctoral studies to research this area in the same program at UW Madison.

Andrew Houtenville, PhD, is an Associate Professor of Economics and Research Director of the Institute on Disability at the University of New Hampshire. Dr. Houtenville is extensively involved in disability statistics and employment policy research. He has published widely in the areas of disability statistics and the economic status of people with disabilities. He is the Principal Investigator on the NIDILRR-funded Employment Policy and Measurement Rehabilitation and Research Training Center. Dr. Houtenville received his Ph.D. in Economics from the University of New Hampshire in 1997 and was a National Institute on Aging Post-Doctoral Fellow at Syracuse University in 1998/1999.
